

HOW TO TELL IF YOUR CAR NEEDS A GAS SERVICE

Getting your car serviced may not be a top priority but when it stops working or you're hit with a large repair bill it suddenly catapults to the top of your to-do list. You can avoid a crisis by knowing what to look for.

Use this 10 Point Checklist to work out whether you need to get your car service done sooner rather than later

- ☐ I'm having problems starting my car
- ☐ My engine is idling fast
- ☐ I've noticed there is a lack of power when I'm driving my car
- ☐ The engine stalls when I start or accelerate
- ☐ The weather affects the performance of my car
- ☐ The engine speed when cold is running over 3,000 rpm
- ☐ The car has been stalling at night
- ☐ It's been longer than 6 months since I last had a service
- ☐ I've had another mechanic look at it or do some work and its been running worse since then
- ☐ It doesn't run well in normal road conditions (city, freeway)

Ticked more than 3? You need a gas service.

Ticked more than 5? The clock is ticking and it won't be long before you're calling a breakdown service rather than your local mechanic.
